[PROHIBITED] ITEMS IN [HAND] BAGGAGE?	?	?	?
	Image 1 : Divya is struggling to decide if the grooming accessories can be carried in the hand baggage.	Image 2 : [Breakdown] Pankaj is first time traveling with family. He is not sure if baby food products like powder supplements, milk and boiled water can be carried in the hand baggage and what quantity of it if at all allowed.	Image 3 : Akhil is not sure if the grooming accessories like trimmer (non sharpened object) and shaving foam gel can be carried in the hand baggage.
WEIGHING BAGGAGE
	Image 4 : [Clever hack] In order to weigh the baggage, Divya adopted a clever hack with only a human weighing machine available. Firstly, Divya weighted herself. Secondly, she weighted herself alongwith the baggage. Thirdly, she weighted the baggage. Afterwards, she did the maths to compute the approximate weight of the baggage.	Image 5 : Pankag used a portable baggage weighing scale.	Image 6 : [Breakdown] With no access to a weighing scale, Akhil just lifted the baggae and approximately guessed the weight.
MEASURING BAGGAGE
	Image 7 : Divya used a measuing inch tape to measure the Dimensions - “Height”, “Width” and “Depth” of the baggage.	Image 8 : [Clever hack] Pankaj used a clever hack to approximately measure the baggage. He asked his daughter to stand alongside the baggage and used relative approximation to determine the dimensions of the baggage.	Image 9 : Akhil is using two 6 inches scale joined together to approximately measure the dimensions of the baggage.
